

By the side of a hedge on the Emmittsburg road is the grave of the Confederate General Barksdale. It is a plain mound, with rough pine head and foot boards. At his head, written with a lead-pencil, is the following inscription. "Brig. Gen. Barksdale, McLaw's division, Longstreet's Corps, died July 3d. Wound in left breast; left leg broken. Eight years a Representative in Congress. At the foot, written in the same hand, is:—"Gen. Barksdale, C. S. A." At the Confederate general's feet, and almost touching him, it lies so close, is the grave of a Federal officer. The headboard tells us that it is Captain Foster, of the 148th regiment Pennsylvania volunteers. At the captain's feet is the grave of N. M. Wilson, a sergeant of the 11th Massachusetts.—There they lie, New England, Pennsylvania, and the South, enemies during life, but sleeping their last sleep together.

[Special Dispatch to The New York News.]
PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—Major General Dana has been ordered to the field for temporary duty. He left for Harrisburg at noon.—Lieutenant Colonel Whipple will take command in this city during the absence of General Dana.

Major Gen. Sigel and his staff were at Reading yesterday. In the evening he was serenaded, and made a speech, which was enthusiastically cheered by the Germans. It is understood that he will have command of the troops raised in Berks and the adjoining counties.

It is expected that the draft will commence here on Monday. An extensive camp for drafted men is to be established near this city, and it is rumored that Gen. Andrew Porter will be placed in command.

THE DRAFT.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The draft is progressing in all the New England States, and in Pennsylvania and New York. As the enrollment is completed in each of the various districts a certain proportion of men is designated. It is certain that the entire number to be called out in all the States has not been designated.

A laundress employed in the Summit House Hospital, Philadelphia, was arrested upon the charge of having purloined several articles from the institution. Some of the stolen property was found at her house, and then she acknowledged the theft. The surgeon in charge did not desire to prosecute the case, and dismissed the woman. As she was about leaving, she was met by a guard, and escorted from the premises to the tune of the "Rogue's March."

Louis Napoleon's present mania for foreign employment of his faithful fighters is very nearly though slyly hit off, by the Paris "Charivari," in the picture of a sobbing grsette taking leave of her departing Zouave, and threatening him that if he did not give up wandering all over the world, she would abandon the army, and choose a sweetheart out of the fire brigade. Intimations of Russia, China, Mexico, and Italy, are thrown into the tableau, and give it point.

Vicksburg was occupied on the Fourth, and one day after a special post office agent established a post office in the town.

NOTICE.—Persons who have Books in their possession, borrowed from or belonging to, the late I. Louis Kinzer, dec'd, are requested to return them to his former office, No. 24, South Royal st. where they will be received by Mr. George Bryan.

FROM NEW ORLEANS.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—A New Orleans letter reports the capture, by cavalry, of Gen. Neal Dow, at a farm house, back of Baton Rouge, where he was convalescing from a wound.

It was generally believed that an assault on Port Hudson would be made on the 4th.

Gen. Banks has reviewed the storming party under Col. Birge, of the 13th Connecticut.

The steamer Iberville, disabled by a shot from Confederate field-pieces, is below Donaldsonville.

Another steamer is slightly damaged. Gunboat No. 2 came to their assistance, and drove off the Confederates.

A raid was reported by Confederate cavalry into Springfield Landing. They were repulsed after a short skirmish, but in the meantime had carried off some negroes and destroyed a quantity of stores.

FROM VICKSBURG.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—Particulars have been received from Vicksburg of the capitulation. We have taken about 7,000 prisoners, besides 4,000 non-combatants, 102 field pieces, 30 siege guns, 50,000 stands of arms, and 57 stands of colors.

There are five hundred and fifty men in the hospitals there, half of whom are wounded.

Only a hundred and fifty of the garrison are reported fit for duty.

The official report of Admiral Porter, of the surrender of Vicksburg has been received at Washington. It is entirely devoted to details of the naval operations.

Among the prisoners in the Old Capitol is a woman about six feet high, dressed in male attire, who is said to have considerable science in her fists as well as her tongue. A few days ago she became excited at one of the guards and gave him a severe thrashing. Mr. Wood, the superintendant, came to the rescue of the guard and the fair one immediately gave him a tongue lashing, using words repulsive to ears polite, and became so violent that it was necessary to knock her down and put her in close quarters, the strength of several men being required to quiet her.
